

The new ruling on fax communications does not contemplate the prior business relationship that associations have with members, exhibitors and sponsors. Associations have successfully managed fax communications with these groups for many years. Associations are generally controlled by members and therefore these members are in a a position to rectify any abuses, and in fact have done so over the years. A needless regulation impinging on the growth and education of industries is not in the best interest of the American public. Thanks!